Hallow-E'en.
Next Thursday, October 31st will be Al Souls' Day, more commonly called Hallow-'een, which popular superstition has given a peculiar character; no other day in the year has such strange and varied customs, attached to it, and the charms and ham. spells of that night so big with prophesy to the Scottish peasantry, are relied upon by the youths and maidens of our own land who would pry into the future, and "monie lads" and lassies' fates are that night decided."If you want to know howit is done, read Burns' poem on "Hallow-een" and then join a party of young folks next Thursday night. Disembodied spirts, witches fairies and devils are abroad that nigh and the general belief is that the latter take the form of the small boy, whose pranks on that occasion are too well and sadly known by the inhabitants to need nentioning. The ideal Hallow-e'en is celebrated at an old fashioned country house, and the memory of the jolly parties, the hearth's bright glow, the rosy-cheeked apples and shiny brown chestnuts, say othing of the divinations and incanta ions are among the pleasant rem of an earlier day. The tricks played then nowever are the same that are played today, and diving in a tub of water for an apple that must be seized with the teeth; roasting chestnuts that alternately crack and sputter and burn steadily and quietly; ing stalks of kale; the saucers befor he "hearth-stone ranged" and many more nells just as sure will be tried on this Holborn on hallow'een are able to see super natural things, and many a strange sight is evealed to them at the witching hour of

ADVERTISING

ALONE

Won't sell goods. If it would then all stores on earth would then all stores on earth to-day would do enough advertising to sell fifty times the amount of goods they do. There has got to be something back of the advertisement. There has got to be something in the advertisement besides wind and big words. There has got to be truth in it. There has got to be truth in it. There has got to be belief in it. It's a mistake to think people don't notice think people don't notice what's going on. They do. They look at things pretty sharply. We never made the mistake of advertising a thing at a price and claiming it to be the lowest price unless we know it, when we don't know it-when we only guess at it-although we're sure in our own minds-we don't say it.

How often do you see things advertised and the price guaranteed "the lowest on earth" and then come in here and see the same thing still lower. It happens often. It happens on all sorts of things. Did you ever see a $1 hat as good as our 75c ones? Nixy. Did you ever see as good a Shoe as our new $3 Shoe for less than $4? Never. Did you ever see a Boy's Suit at $1 gr that looks. Boy's Suit at $1.75 that looks as good as ours? Did you ever see a suit like our $7.50 suit for less than $10?

Do you know of a store on earth that has in 3 years worked up such a business as ours without the aid of a chromo or a hand organ? Do you know of another store that everybody speaks a good word for? We desire your good words.
